Project description:

Civil Society has become an increasingly important political and social actor in Georgia. Therefore, support to and engagement with civil society in all of its diversity is an essential part of the European Union (EU) programming in Georgia. The Civil Society STAR Initiative is the major project implemented with the EU and Konrad-Adenauer-Stiftung (KAS) support and targeting several key dimensions of civil society development: its environment, institutional, organisational and operational capacities, transparency and accountability at all levels country-wide, linkages to other actors and the broader public, social activism, and public participation.

The ultimate goal of the project is to strengthen civil society as an independent development actor across Georgia. To this end, it targets to mobilize around 80% of the active CSO-community in Georgia (800 CSOs of all sizes in all regions, including approx. 150 CBOs, as well as initiative groups, and other forms of grassroots). Our special targets are youth and civic education schoolteachers (up to 3000 and 600 individuals respectively), up to 5000 social activists and citizens, including the elderly and those from vulnerable groups. The project also targets approximately 200 public authority representatives (including all levels of authorities), 100 business entities, 250 media representatives and 8 universities (both public and private) across the country. The action engages all above-mentioned target groups in mutually beneficial cross-sectoral cooperation.

Expected results:

The STAR Initiative strives to produce five types of outputs linked with the above mentioned three specific objectives:

Second, we pilot new funding mechanisms for civil society to boost the cross-sector partnerships especially among CSOs and businesses, and improve CSR culture in the country.

Third, our action increases the public trust in and recognition of CSOs by other stakeholders and the broader public.

Forth, our project enhances the capacities of individual civil society actors in the organisational and core operational areas.

Fifth, the STAR Initiative supports the CSO networks to become more impactful and therefore, resilient in all regions of
